

Subject and object questions speaking games

Game 1: Making original subject and object questions games

Ask each other questions. You get a point if you get an answer no one has given before but no points if you get an answer that has been said before by anybody (including you).

Continue the same game, but this time only asking "Who...?" questions. You get no points for answers that anyone has said before. You can't use the same question twice, but you can just change a few words such as asking "Who do you buy presents for?" and then "Who buys presents for you?"

-----fold, cover or cut-----

Continue the same game, but using these suggested verbs:

- borrow from
- bring
- buy... for
- complain to
- cook... for
- criticize
- cuddle/ hug
- do housework for
- do the ironing for
- do the laundry for
- do... for
- email/ text
- give advice to
- give money to
- give presents to
- give... to
- help... with
- hit
- kiss
- lend... to
- lie to (= not tell the truth to)
- listen to
- look after... for
- make the bed for
- make... for
- pay money to
- say sorry to (= apologise to)
- say... to
- send... to
- serve... to
- shout at
- show... to
- sing (...) to
- speak (...) to
- telephone/ phone/ call
- thank

Game 2: Getting particular answers with subject and object questions game

Deal out the cards below. If someone says the word on one of your cards when you ask them a “Who...?” question, you can discard that card. The person who has fewest cards in their hand at the end of the game wins.

Cards to cut up and deal out

mother	father	English teacher
grandfather	grandmother	brother
sister	bus driver	friend
cousin	classmate	best friend
uncle	aunt	... teacher
distant	old friend	waiter/ waitress
shopkeeper/ shop assistant	bank teller/ bank manager	taxi driver
pet	tutor	... teacher